

Use An Object To Inspire A Story

You can use any interesting or unusual object to get your imagination going:

A woodman came to chop down a tree but just as he went to swing his axe a goblin jumped out from the roots and told him to stop.

The woodman laughed and carried on cutting down the tree so the goblin turned him into a wooden rabbit.

The next day two children were walking in the woods and they found the little wooden rabbit. They took it home to use as an eggcup.

One of the children cried and when the tears fell on the little wooden rabbit it came to life...

What could happen next? Ask yourself, "What if this happened? What if that happened?"

Have a go at telling the wooden rabbit's story, either to someone else or to yourself inside your head - just before going to sleep is a good time to do this. Use the ideas above or just daydream and come up with your own.
